Climate Ethics and Climate Economics

Newsletter - March 2017

The third workshop in the Climate Ethics and Climate Economics series, 'Fat Tails—Imposing and Redistributing Risks', ran in September 2016 at the London School of Economics, and included public lectures by Robert Pindyck and Stephen Gardiner. A video of Bob's lecture is available here.

Papers and presentations

The workshop included the following papers and presentations:

- Stephen Gardiner, 'Motivating and Expanding a Core Precautionary Approach'
- Eike Düvel, 'Rights-based Precautionary Approaches and Risk Imposition in the Context of Climate Change'
- Simon Dietz and Nicoleta Anca Matei, 'Spaces for Agreement: A Theory of Time-Stochastic Dominance and an Application to Climate Change'; published version here
- Robert S Pindyck, 'The Economics of Catastrophic Climate Change'
- Matthew Rendall, 'Discounting, Tail Scenarios, and the Fallacy of Division'
- James Lenman, 'Contractualism and the Ethics of Risk'
- Simon Beard, 'Fairness and the Future: Evaluating Extreme Technological Risks'
- Jonathan Herington, 'Extreme Climate Risks and the Value of Security'
- Vera Van Gool, Environmental Fat Tails: What Have Ecosystems Ever Done for Us?'
- Kian Mintz-Woo, 'Scouting the Risks Ahead'

Audio files of many of the talks are also available on the series workspace. In some cases, you will need to register to gain access.

Further workshops

The fourth workshop in the series, 'Climate Justice and Economic Growth', ran in January at the University of Manchester. We will notify you when presentations from that workshop are available online.

Next up is 'Risk, Uncertainty and Catastrophe Scenarios' at the Centre for the Study of Existential Risk at the University of Cambridge. The keynote speakers will be Doyne Farmer and Hilary Greaves. A call for papers is posted here. We would be happy to see many of you again, as presenters, discussants, or spectators.
