Centre for European Studies, Jagiellonian University,
Kraków, Poland

The Centre for Russian, Central and East European Studies (CRCEES) has decided that the first CRCEES Summer School will take place in Kraków, Poland from Saturday 7 July to Saturday 21 July 2007. The summer school programme will incorporate a comparative, cross-cultural and interdisciplinary approach to addressing the theme: PROCESSES OF EUROPEANISATION. It will consist of mainly seminars and workshops which will aim to bring together students with similar research interests but whose research is conducted across a range of geographical locations and from a variety of disciplinary backgrounds. Cultural activities and visits from guest speakers have also been built into the summer school programme. The preliminary summer school programme will be circulated shortly.

The Kraków Summer School is open to all research and taught postgraduate students in all CRCEES partner institutions. Postgraduate students from other UK and Central and East European universities are also welcome to apply to attend the Summer School but will have to find their own sources of funding. All postgraduate students wishing to participate in the Kraków Summer School should send their CV and a 500-word outline of their research interests to Clare McManus-Czubińska before Friday 2 February 2007 ( c.mcmanus@lbss.gla.ac.uk ). Also, do not hesitate to contact Dr McManus-Czubińska for further details of the Kraków Summer School. Please note that while CRCEES has endeavoured to pay the travel expenses (at least up to £100) and accommodation expenses of all CRCEES students, funding is limited and students should apply for a place on the summer school as early as possible in order to guarantee funding. CRCEES has established an Organising Committee chaired by Clare McManus-Czubińska and comprised of John Bates, Elwira Grossman, Geoff Swain, Margaret Tejerizo (Glasgow) and Alison Stenning (Newcastle).
