

Jeff Tamblyn

Through the production of his award-winning feature documentary, Kansas vs. Darwin, Jeff became fascinated with the reasons for the frequent disconnections between science and the publics it serves. Jeff's concentrated independent study has brought him into contact with some of the world's leading scholars in the sociology, history, and public understanding of science, including those at Making Science Public, where he was a visiting fellow in May, 2013. Today, he pursues an active interest in science communication and the politics of science.